

THE MIMIC WAR

Between White and Blue Squadrons of United States Navy

Newspaper Row, Washington City, Draws First Blood in Publishing News and Defeating Navy Department's Attempt at Concealment--Squadrons on New England Coast.

Washington, Aug. 21.—Regardless of whether the blue or the white squadron wins, newspaper row draws first blood in the mimic naval war now on.

At the outset Secretary Moody announced that all advance information of the tactics would be withheld from the public. Promptly thereafter the full and correct list of the ships to participate was printed. In fact newspaper row was more accurate than the bureau of navigation, since the latter as late as yesterday's orders to Higginson and Pillsbury, places the Cincinnati in the blue squadron, when as a matter of news, it is and for a long time has been on the Venezuelan coast. This counts only as a bruise. Real blood was drawn when the newspapers discovered that the contemplated field of action included the coast between Buzzard's Bay and the eastern end of Long Island Sound. This was the original plan, and many were the attempts made to confuse the public. At the last minute the department, chagrined by its failure at concealment moved the whole plan 100 miles up the coast.

The latest feat made by the opponents of publicity is refusal to post ship movements relating to the squadron engaged in the practice. This is a real war stratagem and has not been resorted to since the Boxer troubles in China, when for about a week, all news of the American ships in the Philippines or on the Chinese coast was carefully withheld by the bureau of navigation. In view of the fact that press associations have correspondents scattered all along the coast the attempt at ducking is not likely to succeed.

General opinion here pronounces the chances to be decidedly against the "enemy." Admiral Higginson, by stringing his fleet of 19 ships along the coast, the battleships in the center of the line, could, by placing them only six miles apart, cover more than the 100 miles between Portland and Cape Cod, the limits set for the game.

The Whites have to land and remain at anchor in some undefended port six hours without discovery by the Blues in order to win. Under the above plan, they could at no time, be distant more than fifty miles from the battleships of the Blues. In the rules of the game the entire White squadron counts but 45, three battleships alone of the Blues count sixty. The latter can steam at 15 knots an hour easily. The Prairie, the swiftest of the Whites, under forced draught, can make only a fraction under this speed. Since the torpedo boats can make up to 28 knots an hour and yesterday's instructions took off the speed limit allowing for sighting distance of eight miles, one and a half hours will more than suffice to inform the Blue battleships of the enemy's presence. From the farthest point less than 3 hours will be needed to steam up to the enemy. That gives more than one and a half hour's safety margin to the Blues. The only hope for Commander Pillsbury, of the White's, lies in a heavy fog or day, followed by a cloudy night, weather conditions of extraordinary rarity. The above calculation is given him the best chances. His squadron speed is only nine knots and signalling distance between the ships of the Blues should be about ten miles, night and day. The conditions of the contest make only a few harbors on the coast possible to him and these are guarded by signal men, who should within a short time of his arrival notify the blues.

Maneuvers of the Squadron.
Rockport, Mass., Aug. 21.—The morning broke clear and pleasant and the atmosphere was all that could be desired for the vessels of the squadron defending the coast from attack. It is not probable Pillsbury will put in an appearance with his fleet at any point along the coast as long as the weather continues fine and there is no haze to obscure his movements. The vessels of the defending squadron in this immediate vicinity are plainly visible this morning, being in the same position they occupied last night. Early in the forenoon the Alabama began to steam about off Thatcher and the torpedo boat Bagley was sent into port for dispatches.

Highland Light, Mass., Aug. 21.—At daylight this morning the cruisers Brooklyn, Olympia and Montgomery, and a smaller vessel, presumably a torpedo boat of Admiral Higginson's squadron, were lying off Race Point, at the entrance of Provincetown Harbor, looking for Pillsbury's fleet, "the enemy." About 7 o'clock the Brooklyn headed across toward Plymouth and a short time later a large vessel supposed to be the Alabama, came up from the southeast.

because the invited guests did not leave promptly he put his fists to his mouth and imitated the bugle call "taps." The crowd took the hint and left.

Race War in Texas Town.

Fort Worth, Texas, Aug. 21.—An effort to drive negroes out of Fort Arthur resulted in a battle last night in which several were injured, and Will Williams, a negro, was killed. The whites desire to rid the town of all negroes and many of them have left. When the mob reached Williams' house he was ready for attack. Several of the mob are under arrest.

Preparations are being made to demolish the upper part of the bell tower of San Stefano, Venice, which is showing signs of collapse.

TOM JOHNSON
Getting a Boom for President—Democratic National Committeemen Calling to See Him.

Cleveland, Aug. 21.—Frank Walsh, of Kansas City, the National Democratic Committeeman for Missouri, has been here conferring with Mayor Tom L. Johnson. He says the West is wild over Johnson and he is the only logical Democratic candidate for President. For over a month the National committeemen and Democratic moguls have been slipping into Cleveland for conferences with Johnson. All the meetings have been secret.

Young King's Insanity.

Madrid, Aug. 21.—The evidence that the young King Alfonso is demented continues to multiply. According to one account of the tour through the provinces he insulted his subjects, scoffed at the sacred relics shown him, and acted in a most eccentric manner at the audiences and receptions. At one reception he became tired and

WESTERNERS OPPOSE TRUSTS

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 21.—Colonel Moses Wetmore, the millionaire St. Louis tobacco man, brought the trust question before the trans-Mississippi congress today by a resolution declaring trusts a menace to a republican form of government. There was some disposition to debate the resolution, but finally it was sent to the committee on resolutions without comment. The sentiment of the congress is distinctly anti-trust and F. B. Thurber who attempted to defend the meat trust in a carefully prepared paper was sharply taken to task by a number of the members. The resolutions committee is in session this afternoon and is likely to report an anti-trust plank.

MURDERER

Chased by Columbus Mob Into a Filthy Sewer and Captured—Barely Escaped Lynching.

Columbus, Aug. 21.—Leonard Quint, an Italian living on St. Clair avenue, emptied the contents of his revolver at Virgil Blake, aged 20, Tuesday evening. Three bullets took effect, killing him almost instantly. The murderer was pursued by a frenzied mob, which insisted upon lynching him and Quint was chased through a filthy sewer like a rat and finally captured and protected from the mob which pursued him until the police arrived on the scene and he was taken to police headquarters, where the charge of murder was placed opposite his name on the prison slats. The shooting occurred in the yards of the C. S. & H. railroad near the round house of that company about 5 o'clock Tuesday evening.

PROPHECY

Of Startling Things the Next Few Years.

"The Time of the End According to Bible Chronology."—Millennium to Dawn 1941.

Fairmount, W. Va., Aug. 21.—Jas. M. Morris a wealthy land owner is working on a book entitled "The Time of the End According to Bible Chronology," which will make its appearance soon. It predicts startling things for the next few years. Morris is a noted prophet. It is claimed that he predicted forty years ago the war with Spain, the trouble between Great Britain and the Boers, the Galveston horror and the holocaust at Martinique. He says that in 1931 will occur the resurrection of the righteous dead and in 1941 Christ will come for the second time and the millennium will dawn.

General Siegel Dead.

New York, Aug. 21.—General Franz Siegel, the famous soldier, politician and editor, died at his home at No. 563 Mott avenue this city, at 11:45 this morning. The General had been ailing for two years, the result of old age and a general breakdown, but it was only Sunday last that he finally surrendered and took to his bed. The end was peaceful, with his family at his bedside.

NO LYNCHING

Of Brute Who Assaulted Aged Woman. Too Much Reverence for Negroes in Ashtabula.

Jefferson, O., Aug. 21.—There was an attempt made last night by a few to get up a mob to lynch John Crooms, but there was no serious aspect to the affair at any time. The women of the village are very much excited over the affair and while they feel that lynching would be none too good for Crooms, they are not clamoring for it as they did, and feel safe now that Crooms is in jail, as he is a desperate negro.

The old time reverence for negroes in Ashtabula county is still too strong to tolerate a lynching of one of them, no matter how heinous his crime might be.

The two old women are still alive, but they are in a precarious condition.

DOUBT

Prevails in the Chicago Murder Mystery.

Not Settled That Dead Woman Was Minnie Mitchell—Three Men Held to Grand Jury.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—After an investigation by the Chicago police extending over a fortnight and two days coroner's inquest, the authorities are still in doubt whether the murdered woman found at Seventy-fourth and State streets was really Minnie Mitchell. Three men stand accused of complicity in her death and that of Mrs. Annie Bartholin and are held in heavy bonds to the grand jury. Yet Patrolman Watson who found the body could not tell its sex because of the advanced decomposition. Coroner's Physician Springer stated that the body must have been absorbed. Even the coroner's jury when it rendered a verdict today, recommended that Oscar Thompson, Edward Counselman and John Claffy be held to explain the death, stated that the body was supposed to be that of Minnie Mitchell.

Articles of clothing found near the dead body, however, were identified by the Mitchell family and a week ago the body was buried as Minnie Mitchell by relatives of the girl who has been missing since July 30, and who was last seen in the company of her sweetheart, Wm. J. Bartholin.

Two witnesses, Lieutenant Healy and W. M. Allen, testified that Counselman, an intimate friend of Bartholin, had told them the fugitive wanted money with which to pay for a surgical operation on the Mitchell girl at a North Side hospital.

With this conflicting testimony to hinder them the police are almost stalled in their search for William Bartholin, whom the coroner's jury recommended should be apprehended.

The verdict of the coroner's jury practically leaves any further investigation as to the supposed death of Minnie Mitchell to the September grand jury. State Attorney Dineen will return to the city soon and will take up the charges against Thompson, Claffy and Counselman.

More tangible results are expected from the proposed inquest in the case of Mrs. Anna Bartholin, which will be resumed tomorrow. For this murder Oscar Thompson is held as principal and Counselman and Claffy as accessories, although William Bartholin is being sought on the suspicion of matricide as well as for the murder of his fiancée.

INQUEST BEGUN.

Another Witness Adds More Doubt to the Mystery.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—An inquest was begun today to determine officially the cause of Mrs. Annie B. Bartholin's death and the responsibility therefor. Two weeks have elapsed today since the weed bed at 74th and State streets revealed its ghastly secret.

In that fortnight Mrs. Bartholin's body has come to light as a murder victim, three men have been held for alleged complicity in the murders, and an extensive inquiry has been conducted. After unlimited effort in that direction, Bartholin still remains uncaptured and the crimes charged against him continue as baffling a mystery, if not even more so, than on August 7, when the body supposed to be that of Minnie Mitchell was found.

To add to the mystery another witness came forward today with a statement that Edward Counselman was seen with a woman believed to be Minnie Mitchell on August 11, eleven days after her supposed death.

According to the story Counselman called with the young woman at the office of Dr. J. L. Wilgus and sought his professional services. The physician refused to handle the case and Counselman explained that he was present only as the representative of a South Side friend.

OUTING—A large number of the members of the Beech Island and the Rownd Island Outing Clubs went up to Buckeye Lake this morning over the Buckeye Lake road and are holding one of the largest and best outings ever held at the lake.

Japan's first statue in memory of a woman was unveiled recently at Shijo-Neate, near Kyoto.

CHOLERA STILL RAGES IN ARMY

Washington, August 21.—As the cholera continues to reap victims from the American army in the Philippines. A report received from General Chaffee announces that between June 25 and July 10 there were 35 deaths from the dread disease among the enlisted men. During the same period other deaths occurred as follows: Dysentery 17, tuberculosis 2, malaria fever 5, other causes 10. Total 69.

Cholera Ravages Among Natives.

Washington, Aug. 21.—The war department now states that the epidemic of cholera in Manila was started among the natives who had been eating raw shell fish from Tongo Beach, one of the foulest places in the city. No more fish will be taken from the beach. The total number of deaths from cholera in the provinces has now reached 10,000.

CONTRACT

Awarded for the Massillon State Hospital Building at the Letting in Columbus Wednesday.

Columbus, Aug. 21.—The trustees of the Massillon state hospital met yesterday afternoon in the office of Architect Frank L. Packard and awarded the contract for the erection of six new buildings at the institution. The members present were S. J. McMahon of Cambridge, J. H. Newton of Newark, and J. B. Zerbe of Cleveland.

Two of the buildings are intended to accommodate the infirm patients—one male and the other female. They are to be designated as Sherrard cottage and Nash cottage.

The whole number of bids was 48, of which three were total bids. As the partial bids did not cover all items of construction, they could not be considered. The three total bids were as follows: R. H. Evans & Co., Zanesville, $149,937.01; George M. Schneider, Columbus, $151,520.24; J. W. Meyers & Co., Akron, $159,811.93.

Since the bid of R. H. Evans & Co. was the "lowest and best," the contract was awarded to that firm. The buildings are to be completed by Oct. 1, 1903.

MENACE

To the Government and the People are the Great Combines, Declares Russell Sage.

New York, Aug. 21.—Russell Sage does not agree with J. P. Morgan regarding the combination and consolidation of all the great interests. In a printed interview today he gives his views: "Combinations of all great industries are a menace to the government," he declared. "They are not only a menace but are oppressors of the people. Should an era of combination ensue the American people will certainly revolt against them, and if they do, there will be financial ruin such as the people have never dreamed in the history of the world."

Schwab Sails for Europe.

New York, Aug. 21.—Charles M. Schwab, president of the United States Steel Corporation, sailed at 10 o'clock this morning on the French liner Le Lorraine for Europe, where he will seek rest and recovery from his nervous indisposition. Incidentally it is said that he will look over the steel situation with a view of forming a coalition of European steel interests on lines similar to those of the steel trust. President Schwab submitted to a brief interview on the liner. He said that he did not know when he would return and reiterated that he was not so ill as reported.

Messenger Boys' Strike.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—The merchants and brokers today were forced to do the work of messenger boys, and all business depending upon telegraph services was seriously obstructed as the result of a second strike of Western Union messenger boys. The Western Union tried to employ boys to take the places of the strikers but was unable to do so. Telegraph business is all but completely tied up.

THIRTEEN KILLED

And a Dozen Missing--Terrible Havoc Caused by Explosion in Paper Pulp Mill.

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 21.—Up to noon today thirteen men are known to be dead as the result of the explosion in the Delaware pulp works yesterday afternoon. A dozen others are missing. One hundred and fifty were employed in the mill. Seething acid from the vats covered many of the men, killing them instantly. The bodies recovered are horribly mangled, with the skin peeled off everywhere.

First Account of the Explosion.

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 21.—Eight workmen are known to have been killed, six are missing and three others were badly injured by the explosion of two steel digesters in the Delaware pulp mills of the Jessup and Moore Paper Company on the Christiana river yesterday afternoon.

The digesters were in a two story building. Each resembled a vat and were about six feet in diameter. They were used for reducing wood to pulp. Eighteen men were at work in the building. There were two terrific explosions and the next instant the building and other mills about the structure were completely wrecked. One digester was blown into the air and fell to the ground 250 feet away.

A dense volume of smoke for a time prevented the outside workmen from going to the immediate rescue of the men who were thought to be in the ruins. Several men made their escape without assistance. An alarm of fire was sounded and the entire department responded. A large force of policemen were also summoned. Several workmen were taken out unconscious by the rescuers only to die after reaching the hospitals. The wreckage was piled up for more than thirty feet and the escaping steam made the work of rescue difficult.

Those who were not killed outright were mangled and burned by escaping acid that flowed over their bodies from the broken digesters. Up to this time eight persons are dead and according to the officials of the company at least six others in the debris. The wreckage took fire, but after some difficulty the fire department managed to subdue the flames and the work of rescue was continued.

Steam was used in the digesters. The officers of the company think that too much steam was generated in them, and that this was the cause of the explosion.

CUBAN SENATOR WANTED TO HAUL DOWN AMERICAN FLAG

Havana, Aug. 21.—Senator Salvador Cisneros and the Marquis of Santa Lucia presented a motion in the Cuban Senate demanding the removal of the United States coat of arms from the arsenal, the removal of the United States flags and every trace of anything suggestive of the United States. Senators Cabello and Betancourt, signed the motion.

The instant the project was read Mendez Capto sprang to his feet and denounced the motion as childish in the extreme and unbecomingly dignified.

Senator Cisneros defended the project, saying that the act of the United States in putting the emblems in a country not their own, was unjustifiable.

Senator Capote insisted on a vote without further discussion and the motion was voted down unanimously except in the vote of Cisneros.

CODE GOSSIP

Various News About the Measure--Not Enough Home Rule to Suit Democracy.

Columbus, Aug. 21.—Representative Brumbaugh of Darke county, is the first of the members of the general assembly to appear on the scene ready for the opening of the legislature on next Monday.

Mr. Brumbaugh was the leader of the Democratic minority in the regular session and will probably lead them against the Republican code bill.

He says the bill prepared by Governor Nash does not contain enough home rule to suit Democracy.

The efforts of Mr. Brumbaugh and other Democrats in local branches of the legislature will be directed toward getting as many changes made in it in the interest of the people as possible.

He will remain here until the close of the extra session.

Governor Won't Send Out Copies.

Columbus, Aug. 21.—The Governor has again reconsidered his code plans and now announces that he will not send copies to the members but will wait until they arrive in this city to furnish them with a copy.

The code is to be printed by Friday.

SERIOUS CHARGES ARE MADE AGAINST ALASKA'S GOVERNOR

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 21.—Serious charges against Governor Brady of Alaska, were made in the Trans-Mississippi congress by Donald Fletcher of Seattle, who asserted that the Governor was the exponent of a policy of oppression and repression and the active agent of the great commercial companies in delaying self-government while they "gobbled up the best of a magnificent country."

He took issue with Governor Brady's recommendations in his last report to congress for the full extension of the land laws to Alaska, asserting that the recommendation had an ulterior purpose and was in the interest of the powerful elements dominating the progress of the territory. Their application, he charged, would be interminably delayed by quibbling and filibustering in congress.

He also asserted that Governor Brady had been consistently the enemy of the territorial government for selfish aims. As soon as his address was completed, F. B. Thurber of New York, presented resolutions demanding an investigation of the charges. He took exception to Mr. Fletcher's strictures upon Governor Brady.

THE WORKING OF REPUBLICAN POLITICS.

(Toledo Bee.)

Report has it that Superintendent Stiles of the Girls' Industrial home at Delaware, has been whitewashed by the trustees.

Nora Ferris came to her death while Superintendent Stiles was in charge. While he may not have had a personal knowledge of the cruel punishment inflicted upon the girl, he is none the less responsible. It is his business to know what is being done in the institution of which he is in charge.

An investigating board looked into the conduct of the home and made a report that it was a model. It handled the affair without gloves and said what it had to say in blunt, unmistakable language. Stiles was censured for his gross neglect of duty, and there was no course left for men who wished to honorably discharge their trust but to discharge and criminally prosecute the superintendent. Instead of that he has been whitewashed.

Such is Republican politics. Stiles is a politician, the trustees are politicians. The state may go hang; what care they? Their duty to the party and to each other is always before them, and they are unable to see their duty to the public.

There are hundreds of girls whom it is necessary to send to an institution where they will be educated and made better. The Delaware home should be a place where at least one hapless young girl came to her death from the most cruel and diabolical punishment.

If ever a state was cursed with politics and with sordid and corrupt politicians, it is Ohio. Some are men who should be in penal institutions themselves, yet they are conducting the affairs of one of the greatest commonwealths in the union.

The Word Flattery.

At first sight there would appear to be little connection between flattery and the wagging of a dog's tail, yet in nearly all the northern language the same word signifies both, and flattery is certainly derived from the word signifying to wag the tail. In the old Norman daga signifies to flatter and also to wag the tail. In Danish logre is to wag the tail, and loger for can is to fawn on one. In Dutch vleyden is to flatter and vleydsterten is to wag the tail. In the old German weiden is to wag the tail, and in English wheedle is to gain one's end in flattery.

Nothing Wasted.

A Scottish farmer when going to market, it was observed, always took a hen with him in his trap. The reason was never known until one day he took a friend with him on a drive. Every place the farmer stopped he put the nosebag on his horse, and then the hen was so trained that what dropped from the horse's bag the hen would pick up, so there was nothing wasted.—Pearson's Weekly.

UNCLE SAM'S APPLE BIN.

Missouri Now Leads All the Other States.

The center of Uncle Sam's apple bin has been shifted west of the Alleghenies, and the state that leads in the growing of the national fruit is Missouri. This is the burden of a paper read by Professor W. A. Taylor, pomologist in charge of field investigation in the United States department of agriculture, before the national apple shippers' convention in Rochester, N. Y., says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Professor Taylor completed his paper several days ago, but just before the time for reading it he received from the census department advance sheets of statistics bearing on the apple industry of the United States compiled from statistics gathered by the twelfth census, the matter being brought down to June 1, 1900.

According to figures of the twelfth census, the total number of bearing trees in the commercial orchard areas of the United States is 210,000,000, an increase of 75,000,000, or more than 40 per cent, over the apple area of 1800. This commercial area of 1900 yielded in 1899 somewhat more than 175,000,000 bushels of apples. By districts the north Atlantic apple section has 39,500,000 trees, the south Atlantic 25,500,000, the north central 92,000,000, the south central 31,000,000 and the western district, including the Rocky mountain states and the Pacific slope, 13,000,000.

Out of the total number of trees in the country the north and south central districts possess 123,205,000, or nearly three-fifths. These are divided among the leading states as follows: Missouri, 20,000,000; New York, 15,000,000; Illinois, 13,500,000; Kansas and Pennsylvania, a little less than 12,000,000 each. Seven states have more than 10,000,000 trees each. In order they are Missouri, New York, Illinois, Ohio, Kansas, Pennsylvania and Michigan.

"The lesson," said Professor Taylor in his address, "is obvious. We in the east must be prepared to meet the keenest competition from the west and south. It is now assuredly true that the great apple bin of the United States has been shifted to the west of the Alleghenies."

LOVE AND LAW AT ODDS.

Lover Seeks to Prevent Sweetheart's Deportation by Marrying Her.

The decision of Justice Lacombe in a delicate legal question to be argued before him on the 20th of August affecting the immigration laws of the United States will decide whether or not the faithful love of a young Italian couple for five years will have been in vain, says the New York World. The question is whether a marriage by signed contract before a notary between a person who is a resident of New York state and another who is an immigrant held at Ellis island is legal.

Luigi Burzio, a tall, handsome young Italian, the proprietor of a hotel in New York, arrived in America four and a half years ago, bringing with him the promise that Maria La Zare would join him in the United States when he made his fortune. Luigi prospered and was able to send Maria money for a wedding dress and a ticket to the United States. She arrived a few days ago, but the inspectors found her suffering from a disease of the eye which bars an immigrant from landing.

But the suitor waiting for her was equal to the emergency. He appeared before a notary, had the marriage contract drawn up, secured her signature, and then, armed with a writ of habeas corpus, demanded that she be allowed to land. Her return had been ordered by the survey board when Luigi took heroic measures.

ALMANAC VAGARIES.

AN INTERESTING COLLECTION IN THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS.

Noted Men Who Are Credited With Being the First Almanac Makers. Yearly Almanacs the Kings Since the Sixteenth Century.

One of the most curious collections at the library of congress is that of almanacs. These publications, which as advertising mediums are left at the door, often to be at once thrown carelessly into the wastebasket, have a striking and venerable history.

It is still contended by many authorities that the almanac of 1457 was the first specimen of printing, and it has been variously credited to Gutenberg, Schaeffer and Printer of Bamberg. Dr. Faustus, celebrated in legend, whose strange story has been immortalized by Marlowe and Goethe, was the accredited author of almanacs containing astrological signs (retained at the present day) and necromantic secrets. "Poor Richard's Almanac," the production of Benjamin Franklin, is well known as a treasury of homely wit and wisdom. One of the greatest of modern German authors, Auerbach, first won his way to popular esteem by using the almanac as a vehicle for his talents.

Reymontanus, a famous German mathematician, under the patronage of Matthias Corvinus, king of Hungary, published a series of almanacs from 1475 to 1506, and yearly almanacs became an established custom in the sixteenth century. Henry III. of France in 1579 enacted that the almanac should not be made the instrument of partisan politics by the introduction of prophecies against parties and individuals in the state.

The first almanac in the modern shape appeared in England in 1673. It was compiled by Maurice Wheeler, canon of Christchurch, Oxford, and was printed in that city. The sale was so great that the booksellers of London bought the copyright in order to monopolize its subsequent sales. The "Almanac Royal" of Paris, 1697, contained notices of pastimes, court reception days, fairs and markets, to which were added soon afterward the genealogy of the reigning house, etc.

In England James I. granted a monopoly of the trade to the universities and the Stationers' company, subject to the censorship of the archbishop of Canterbury and the bishop of London. The universities accepted an annuity from their colleagues and resigned the active exercise of their privilege into the hands of the Stationers. Under their supervision were conducted the popular almanacs known as "Moore's" and "Partridge's," the latter of which was humorously attacked by Swift. "Poor Robin's Almanac," published from 1652 to 1828, may have furnished a model, at least in title, for Franklin's "Poor Richard."

Popular superstitions and the extravagances of astrology found room in these almanacs, the Stationers, like a genuine corporation or "trust" of the time, having no personality of their own, and exhibiting no special bias except for what would sell, as was particularly proved in 1624, when they issued a set of predictions in one almanac and bitterly contradicted them in another.

The famous "Moore's Almanac" purported to be edited by Francis Moore, physician. The original Francis Moore died in 1721, but the publication was still issued as if under his supervision, and in 1775 a vigorous rival arose in another almanac claiming to be the genuine Francis Moore. A great lawsuit followed, which was decided against the monopoly of the Stationers' company. A bill to renew and legalize the privilege was brought in the house of commons by Lord North in 1779, but Lord Erskine, the great barrister, most brilliantly exposed the absurdity and even indecency of the publication, and the bill was defeated. Although the privilege was thus destroyed, the Stationers purchased their rival and continued to hold the field with a but slightly improved style of publication until 1828, when the Society for the Diffusion of Useful Knowledge published the "British Almanac" and demolished their predecessors, with the able assistance of the daily press, which so vigorously assailed the Stationers' publication that that company was constrained to follow the new example in the "Englishman's Almanac."

The uniform price for an English almanac for many years was a penny, but the monopoly increased the price, and the imposition of the stamp taxes after Queen Anne's time raised it still more. In 1781 "Moore's Almanac" was ninepence, two being for the stamp. In 1796 it rose to 1s. 4d. and in 1816 to 2s. 3d.

An almanac was established by Isaiah Thomas in Worcester, Mass., which gained and established an extraordinary reputation in 1780 from the happy accident that, as it was being set up, one of the boys asked what should be placed against the 13th of July. Mr. Thomas, in careless haste, answered: "Anything! Anything!" The lad, literally obedient, set up "Rain, hail and snow." The diligent readers were surprised, but when the day came the prediction was fulfilled—it really did rain, hail and snow on the 13th of that July, and the fortune of the almanac was made.

The "Almanac de Gotha" is the best known of the German publications. Whittaker's is the standard English publication of the kind, while in this country several of the large newspapers issue annual almanacs. The stray production, however, with its old astrological and magical symbols of Faust, must ever possess an interest for the curious who are versed in the history of almanacs.—Washington Times.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

Modified Louis Costume—Skirts of Lace and Lustrous Silk.

Smart women have adopted the modified Louis coat in chine or brocade to wear with net and chiffon skirts, and a charming black or white toilet relieved with dainty coloring can be evolved in this manner.

Skirts of chine lustrous silk with slips of lace are popular. Very dressy black skirts to be worn over separate foundations are of tulle voile trimmed with black passementerie or inset with black lace. With these are worn unlined black lace blouses.

No matter how fashion changes, the large black hat, simply trimmed, is always in good taste and wearable on almost every occasion.

The new neck ruffles give a sloping effect to the shoulders which is not always becoming to short people. These should remain faithful to the feather boa or the round neck ruche.

One of the smartest Parisian foulard models is here shown. The material is in a delicate shade of old rose and it is trimmed with Venetian lace. The waist is laid into shirtings that simulate a yoke, and the upper halves of the sleeves are treated in the same way. The skirt has a plain front edge with a shirred yoke and slightly full side gores finished with three folds around the bottom.

treated in this way, with a great deal of fullness around the feet, have the waists simply made, with insertions of killing and touches of black braid.

Next to serges come flannels, and these are much used for yachting and even country wear, while Parisians are wearing spotted flannels instead of the plain shades popular last year. Alpaca in pastel shades is also a favorite. The smartest colors are green and blue. Alpaca lends itself admirably to strappings, and for this purpose either the material itself or satin ribbon may be used.

The coat shown in the cut was seen recently at the races. It is of pale gray cloth, with revers and cuffs of ivory panne embroidered in black.

VALUABLE BOOK FOUND

Written in the Philippines in the Fifteenth Century.

ISLANDS ACCURATELY DESCRIBED

Rare Volume Now Owned by William Spencer of Terrell, Tex., Who Discovered It in an Old Cathedral Near Vigan—Is Bound in Strong Red Linen Cloth.

William Spencer of Terrell, Tex., has recently returned from the Philippines, where he was connected with the army, says a special dispatch from Fort Worth, Tex., to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. While stationed at Vigan he went into an old cathedral, which was formerly the show place of the province, and there he found a book, which he brought home with him, and it has proved to be one of great value. An introductory note shows that it was prepared, so far as the descriptive portions go, by Francisco Xavier, a famous Spanish Jesuit missionary, who was born at the castle of Xavier, Navarre, April 7, 1506, and died on the island of Saucan Dec. 2, 1552. He was known as the "apostle of the Indies." His letters were edited in 1795.

The book was translated into English by William Partes, printer and lithographer, 2, 3 and 6 Santa Ana square. It is a small book of 150 pages, crude in its printing and binding, but the paper and cover show careful work. On the first page appears the following: "The geographical part of this handbook is an authorized translation of the 'Compendio de Geografia de las Islas Filipinas,' by P. Francisco X. Baranera, S. J." Of the inhabitants of the Philippine Islands are of a race called Negritos by the Spaniards and Aetas by the civilized natives. They are still to be found in the interior of the islands, though in daily diminishing numbers. They are of very small stature, of a very black color and have curly black hair. All efforts to civilize them have been in vain." He gives the first discovery of the islands to a European, Magellan, in March, 1521, who arrived that month at Butuan, Mindanao.

The compiler has added notes showing the date of the appointment of the first Spanish governor, Miguel Lopez de Legaspi, during the reign of Philip II. In 1565; how Gomez Desmarinas built the walls of Manila in 1590 and the thorough establishment of the church rule in the provinces. The Chinese insurrection in 1645, the volcanic disturbances in 1641, the terrible earthquake in 1645 and the work of the Chinese filibusters and the English invaders in 1662. The chapters devoted to physical geography and to a description of the provinces are written with a detail that is remarkable to be confined to such a limited work.

Mr. Spencer spent some time in the islands after closely reading this book, and he says the descriptions are really better than anything he has read in any geography, history, atlas or encyclopedia published. The book is bound in strong red linen cloth and bears an imprint of a coconut tree, two native huts and a pelican. The effect to produce these in gilt shows the crude methods employed in the print and book shops of Manila. On his return to America Mr. Spencer was importuned by a San Francisco publisher to allow him to have the book for reproduction, but the request was refused. During his stay in the islands he says he never heard of another copy of the book, and this leads to the belief that it is a rare publication.

A NOVEL ENGINE.

Baltimore and Ohio Has a Machine That Carries Passengers.

A unique engine has recently been completed by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad at its Mount Clair shops in Baltimore. It is designed for the use of officials in making inspection trips. Though called an inspection engine, it really answers the purpose of a whole train. The engine has a small passenger coach constructed on top of the boiler back of the smokestack. The boiler is heavily covered with asbestos and the floor of the car with Brussels carpet.

The seats in the coach are arranged in amphitheater style, so as to give every one in the car a full view of the track and surrounding country. Passengers enter the car by winding stairs on either side of the front pilot. The engine may be readily run in either direction.

Megaphone For Street Cars.

The Minneapolis Street Railway company experimented recently with the use of a megaphone street announcer, says a dispatch from Minneapolis to the Chicago Record-Herald. The device may be adopted on all cars in Minneapolis. The mechanism of the arrangement is simple. A metallic tube carries the sound to the roof of the vestibule, connecting with the megaphone just inside the car door and delivering the sound clearly and distinctly to the passengers. The motorman, instead of the conductor, announces the streets under the new plan.

Unearthed a Panama Hat.

An English magazine is responsible for the statement that Professor Flinders Petrie has unearthed a panama hat in his explorations in Egypt. It is said to be of the common, or garden variety, well made and in good condition, with, however, a rakish tilt to the brim which suggests that the early Coptic youth who wore it was in the habit of whistling the latest music hall airs.

HIS ROSTRUM

Farrish Brown put a dry goods box outside of his store door at Wichita fourteen years ago. Tad Hunt came along and sat down.

"Nice box," said Hunt.

"Yes," said Brown.

There was silence for a few moments. Hunt sat still and looked pensively. He had never been able to get a job. His wife kept a boarding house, and it was said that Tad was her man of affairs—that is to say, her steward. But, as a matter of fact, Mrs. Hunt could not trust Tad.

"It's a queer world," he said, drawing a knife from his pocket and opening it, "men and women everywhere and nothing but men and women, and nearly all of 'em making one another miserable and nothing to show for it but the grave at last. The places that knew them once know them no more forever, and the sun rises each morn and sets each night, and none of the questions of man is answered. Talk of the sphinx! Why, every blade of grass is a sphinx and holds a secret. There is not a star in heaven that we are not obliged to question. And what answer have we? Silence. Silence."

He was tracing a little border on the box, made of an intertwining of figure 8's, and the man who stood near watched him and was much interested; so much so that another man who wasn't doing much either stopped, too, and watched the making of the border. Tad looked up and nodded to him.

"It is astonishing," went on Tad, "to see how men toil and toil. This man has one scheme, and the next man has another. Yet talk with any man over forty and you find him to be a graveyard of blasted hopes. The struggle has been in vain. Even success proves to be failure, for no man makes a success which satisfies him.

"And yet it is the destiny of man to aspire. Some great power beyond himself drives him on to hope. He must rise. He is a part of the scheme of evolution and cannot help himself any more than as if he were a mollusk in the sea. He is driven to settle America, invent machines, to make laws adapted to wider ideas of liberty. He congratulates himself on his improvement, but he has really no call to congratulate himself. He is driven by the winds of destiny."

He did quite a strip of the border in silence, wiped his forehead on his shirt sleeve—for he wore no coat—and repeated with pensive accent:

"Driven by the winds of destiny."

These remarks were repeated about town by those who listened to them. "Tad Hunt is quite a philosopher in his way," they said. Tad had stayed on the box the first day till noon and returned at 2, after which he left the box at 5:45. The next morning he was on hand at 8. Brown thought it looked rather businesslike to have a crowd about his doors and didn't object much. Besides, he enjoyed Hunt's reflections, which came nearer being thought than anything Brown had met with for some time. He almost thought himself as he listened to them and summoned from that unused chamber politely denominated his mind sentiments of approval or disapproval. As time went on Hunt improved in appearance. To be sure he was no more particular about buttoning his cuffs, nor was he more addicted to the wearing of coats, but a certain look of fire and enthusiasm came to his eyes, such as may be seen in the glance of a popular actor or preacher. He walked down the street to his box mornings with an alert step. He became eager for his audience. Sometimes he returned in the evening and talked till time for shutting up shop.

As the years rolled by his audience changed, but he seemed to always be able to secure a hearing from some one. Thus it came about that he sat perched on his place of preaching for fourteen years and differed from the East Indian mystics who do similar things principally in the facts that he went home to his meals and that he desired to disseminate his views.

One morning Hunt came from his house to the store. There he stopped as if paralyzed. A cold perspiration crept out on his forehead. He grew red and then white. For the box was gone. The pulpit was destroyed. The high place was overthrown. There was a crowd about him presently, chaffing him and roaring, but Hunt seemed to hear nothing. He looked about in utter dismay.

Then something remarkable happened. Tad brought a suit for damages against Brown. The court had to actually consider the case, and Tad Hunt was his own counsel and put up an eloquent argument. So the court granted him the suit and gave him a penny. In a way Hunt felt himself vindicated, but that didn't restore his box, for he had been unable to secure a mandamus for its return. So he walked about sadly for a few days, looking detached—like a protoplasm cut off from its own particular slimy ooze—and at last stayed indoors at home. After that the boarders began to leave, and one day Mrs. Hunt broke up house and took Tad away with her on the train. They didn't say where they were going. The ticket agent might have told, but he didn't.

Her Luck.

"After all," said Mrs. Galleigh, "it isn't so bad to have a husband who sleeps in church. Mine dreamed all through the sermon last Sunday, and I can't help feeling glad every time I think of it."

"Why, who ever heard of such a thing?" her friend exclaimed.

"You see, our minister preached a horrid, impertinent sermon against women paying so much for the clothes they wear, and I just know that if Jonathan had been awake he'd never get through quoting it to me."—Chicago Record-Herald.

THE INSTITUTE

Of 1902 Will Go Down in History as One of the Largest and Most Successful Ever Held.

Promptly at one o'clock the Wednesday afternoon session was called to order by President Pryor, and Dr. Houck, the first speaker, took the platform. Before beginning to speak he requested those present to repeat in concert the little verse:

"The inner side of every cloud
Is bright and shining;
I therefore turn my clouds about,
And always wear them inside out
To show the lining."

He also advised his hearers to commit to memory other little poetical gems which might often help to brighten a troubled hour. His talk for the afternoon was on the worth of the bits of poetry and song which the instructor should have at his command and teach to his pupils. He declared that every American boy and girl should be acquainted with all of our national airs and be able to sing them. He spoke of the natural ability and love of the colored race for music, and quoted from negro melodies filled with real pathos and beauty.

An illustration of the teacher's work was drawn from the old fashioned lamp-lighter—it being the teacher's mission to each troubled, lonely heart and to bring sunshine into dark places. If you cannot teach so much, at least feel that you have been able to lighten some one's burden, and your time and effort will not be lost.

One of the most beautiful hymns ever written is Addison's "The spacious firmament on high." The man who has committed to memory such treasures as this, has invaluable wealth at his command. No one can overestimate their value; they are company in loneliness, they are encouragement in despondency. In closing Dr. Houck repeated the beautiful words of "Nearer, My God, to Thee," inseparably connected with the last hours of President McKinley.

At the close of Dr. Houck's address the secretary, Miss Richardson, called the roll, to which a large number of teachers responded. After this a few minutes' intermission was given to complete registration.

Supt. Miller's afternoon discourse was on the Battle of Gettysburg, the turning point of the Civil war. By specializing on some one specific event the history teacher may best arouse in his scholars an interest which no other means will arouse. In order to understand this battle, study must be given to the events leading up to it. Attention must be given to the topography of the country, and to the condition and previous movements of both armies. Shortly after the beginning of the Civil war General Winfield Scott had resigned his position as the commander in chief of the Northern army, and General George B. McClellan had been appointed to his place.

In two points the Northern soldiers were inferior to those of the South. The Southerners were by far the better riders and much more skilled in the use of fire arms than their opponents. Therefore in the early movements of the war the South was at an advantage, and the North becoming dissatisfied with lack of success, General McClellan was removed from the command and John Pope appointed in his place. Pope's disaster at Bull Run, however, was the cause of McClellan's reinstatement. Public dissatisfaction was the cause of McClellan once more being withdrawn, and Burnside, Hooker and Meade made commander in quick succession. With Meade in command the command was sent by Lincoln, "Keep Lee from Washington." Lee's advance guard was already devastating southern Pennsylvania, while Lee himself was shrewdly taking care that he be not cut off from Richmond, the Southern capital. Each commanding officer was for some time ignorant of the other's movements. On June 29, Meade's army had a difficult task; to spread over such territory as to keep Lee from Richmond and Washington at the same time. Meantime Lee was concentrating his army near Gettysburg. On the night of the 29th, the Northerners first discovered the position of the Southern army. Both sides seemed to feel that here was to be a decisive contest. The first day of the battle brought to the Union forces a serious loss in the death of General Reynolds, but a gain in the capture of the Confederate General Archer.

After this day's battle, the armies gathered more closely about the village of Gettysburg. The Northern army was arranged along Cemetery Ridge, the Southern along Seminary Ridge, about a mile to the west. At the southern extremity of the Northern forces General Sickles was placed as guard; opposite him was Longstreet. At the end of the second day, the Confederate army regarded itself as victorious. On the third day, Pickett was selected by Lee to make the attack. At ten o'clock on the third day Lee opened a terrible cannonade, which continued for two hours. Then, thinking that Meade's ammunition was exhausted, Pickett led out a force of 18,000 men, to be met by terrible fire from Meade's soldiers. The point where Pickett's men were turned back is marked by a tablet on which is engraved, "The High Water Mark of the Rebellion." He closed with a short account of the reunion at Gettysburg, where at the word of command given by Mrs. Pickett, widow of the general, the veterans of the blue and the gray, extended to each other the right hand of fellowship, signifying that the old struggle was ended and the wounds beginning to heal.

This lecture was made exceedingly interesting and instructive by the excellent map and blackboard illustrations, and by the fact that Mr. Miller has himself spent several days on the field of Gettysburg and is thoroughly acquainted with his subject.

During the last half of the afternoon Dr. Keyes spoke of the language question in the common schools. This question has probably worried the public school teacher a little more than any other he has to do with. There is prevalent a fallacious idea concerning this department which makes the teacher's work infinitely hard. No language training ever flows into oratory; the orator is born, not made, and the teacher cannot develop in the pupil a gift which nature has not given him.

Grammar does not "teach the art of speaking and writing the English language"; this idea is being done away with. Rather take Richard Grant White's explanation, "when we lack fit words, we lack fit thoughts." Grammar as a means of language study is a calamitous failure. When you know your subject, there is no lack or waste of words. The foundation of good language is good thinking.

Two things must be borne in mind by the teacher to be successful: 1. A knowledge of language does not come from grammar; 2. The subject must be approached by attacking things with which we are familiar.

The teacher must train her pupils to talk fluently by having them speak frequently on subjects in which they are interested and with which they are familiar; there will then be no lack of words in which to express themselves. Another matter of which care should be taken, is that the teacher must not do all the talking.

If you have a good knowledge and control of language, see that you do not lose it. Keep good linguistic company; your talents will rust and become useless if you do not use them.

The number of county and city teachers attending the institute is steadily increasing. It is generally acknowledged that the programs and instructors are the best which have been secured for several years, and the interest taken in each session, and the large numbers present, testify to the truth of this. Up to Thursday morning over six hundred have been registered with new names constantly being added.

At 9 o'clock on Thursday morning the meeting was called to order by Mr. Will H. Miles, who announced that the devotional exercises would be conducted by the Rev. Mr. Yantis. Singing "Am I a Soldier of the Cross" was followed by the Scripture lesson from Proverbs 3:13-20, "the value of wisdom." Mr. Yantis then led in prayer followed by the singing of "America," and of a third hymn, "Help Save Ohio."

The first speaker was Dr. Houck. In referring to the hymn just sung, he spoke of the several states which have their own hymns, and repeated the words of "The West Virginia Hills," music for which was written by Dr. D. B. Purinton, formerly of Denison University. Dr. Houck then went on to speak from a one-word text, "Encouragement." Removing prefix and suffix of this word we have left "courage,"—the secret key to many a success. Curtailing this word still farther, there remains the single syllable "cour" which we may shorten into "cor," and the teacher who can give "core" or heart to his pupils is the one who will be successful.

The first day of school is bound to be a hard one. Many a boy, remembering past discouragements, is loathe to return to them; the wise teacher will be reluctant to pile up the lessons until the slow pupil is mired in a slough of despond.

The speaker declared "I believe in a faithful use of the book." The text book put the subject matter more clearly and satisfactorily than the teacher can; why should the teacher spend long evenings in memorizing, when the hours can be put to much better uses?

Dr. Houck spoke of his own early school experiences, with his excellent facilities for "drawing out" the teacher. The shrewd teacher will not allow himself to be "drawn out" until the lesson has first been attended to. Idle talk from instructor or pupil is not teaching; but the teacher who is acquainted with his subject commits no crime by keeping his book before him for an occasional reference.

He repeated Dr. Keyes' statement that where we have thoughts, we have words to express them. Of course, there are occasions—e. g., examination—when allowance must be made for natural timidity or nervousness. The manner of the examiner is usually entirely unsuited to the occasion; pompousness and severity are entirely out of place before a class undergoing examination. Too often young pupils are given examination questions which a university graduate could not answer.

The teacher should not do all the talking or all the work. Let the boys and girls have the joy of victory. When your students have accomplished something, commend them; shortness and snappiness will take the "core" out of any boy or girl. A bitter word leaves a wound that can never be healed.

Miss Richardson, the secretary, then called the roll, which was followed by a short intermission during which a number of newly arrived teachers registered. Before the next address, Mr. Vincent of the Hinds & Noble Publishing company, was given a few minutes in which to talk of the publications which he is introducing.

Dr. Keyes then continued the language talk which he began on Wednesday afternoon. The most efficient teacher, he said, and the most capable is the one who has command of language and who is able to communicate to others the thought in his own mind. He reiterated his statement that the whole study of language has formerly been based on two mistakes.

1. That language study is related to grammar. It must be remembered that the study of grammar has its own value, but it is distinct from language study; the value of grammar study is disciplinary. 2. It is not often enough remembered that fluency in language comes only from practice. Bearing in mind these two erroneous ideas, and resolving to do away with such mistakes, the whole basis of procedure in language study is changed from grammar as a foundation to reading.

Reading in the elementary stages has not much connection with language study. The first should be added to the text books in use. A good test of a school book's value is to ask the question, "Is it such a book as the child would wish to take on a summer vacation?" In the last few years a great change has been made in the school books sent out by the publishing companies. A child is going after the things which will appeal to his interest, it is not for older minds to say what the children ought to be interested in and expect them to act according to our notions. In language we must recognize what are the children's interests, and give them the things in which they are interested to read about. It is a vile libel that the boy cares only for the blood and thunder novel, or the girl with the sentimental love story. If the boy's mind wants an Indian story, give it to him, but let it be the spirited, healthful Indian story which will arouse in him a desire to be a better man; if the girl wants a love story, give her such a one as Longfellow's beautiful "Evangeline." Every boy likes a hero; every girl loves a manly man and a pure woman. If such literature is given to the young minds, they will learn to ask for more because they like it. Take Scott's "Lady of the Lake"—a thrilling novel in verse, for reading of which everyone is the better. No one is ever too old or too young to enjoy such a love story. Admiration will be divided between Fitzjames and Rodrick Dhu, and this is as it should be; courage and heroism, even in the villain, are always admired.

If you wish to draw a language lesson from this reading, have your pupils write their opinions of "the nearest man in the Lady of the Lake," and "the truest woman in the story." Begin with "The Lady of the Lake" and in time you will reach "Paradise Lost." Give your children a chance to talk if they are interested; you will find that nothing is so contagious as cultured, refined language.

In the concluding talk of the morning, Mr. Miller spoke on the subject of "Commercial Geography." Geography formerly dealt largely with names, location, boundaries, etc., but this is changed very largely. Less attention is paid to the boundary of a country, more to its products; the geography of today is filled with a treatment of practical subjects which will appeal to the future business man. Irrigation is a question of great interest at the present time; few people will believe that half of our United States is still an uncultivated area. The extensive magazine treatment of such subjects as this is no less geography than the matter found in the text books. Thousands of square miles in the west need only one thing—water—to enable them to double the value of our country's products. A little stream of water will make western farm lands almost equal in value to city property. In Congress there has been introduced a bill to establish storage reservoirs for water in these western lands, from which water can be distributed among arid lands, turning them into prosperous farms. It is prophesied that within five years fifty millions of people can be supported from these districts. It is a matter of interest to see how nearly these prophesied results will be attained. This will mean increase in products, increase in population, in railroads, in commercial interests.

In the United States in 1898, there were 200,000 miles of railroad, Illinois being first, with 10,000 miles, Ohio third with 8, 875 miles. There were 37,000 railroad engines, 1,570,000 cars and 875,000 employees. A wonderful story, and with four years growth to be allowed for.

Another means of traffic must be considered, namely, canals. The canal has done great and magnificent work for this country, and still has its influence. The Erie canal made New York City what it is. Today the "Soo" canal of Northern Michigan is traversed by freight of more value than the widely known Suez canal. Mr. Miller here gave some very interesting information concerning canal locks.

THAT HEADSTONE

"Mortimer Barbour's father embezzled and killed himself. Mortimer lived with his mother, Malvina, and farmed and wrote books about insects. When his mother died, he placed her grave with violets and pansies, and at the head was a white marble monument, but he didn't display any taste—nothing on it but the old lady's name and the date she died."

"Now, he was the last man in the village I'd ever have imagined would have married. But when the little milliner, Melinda McAllister, came into the place he was struck. Everybody warned her and told her about his father hanging himself in prison, and how queer his mother was, and that Mortimer was odd, too, and wouldn't come to any good. She listened, with her eyes big and cool and a little hot patch of red on her cheeks like a dab of paint, but she never said a word."

"But we were not prepared for the worst. A day or two before the wedding in comes Mrs. Johnson and says, 'Shut up the doors tight and the windows. I've got something to tell you that'll make your hair rise up,' she says, whispering like. So I shut the door, she clasping her hands together like one possessed."

"It's about Melinda," she went on.

"He has got a tombstone for her."

"Who?" asked I, as if I didn't know, but my knees knocked together, and I felt queer.

"Mortimer Barbour," says she. "My nephew Johnnie was after a bird's nest in a tree that stands in his garden. The limb broke, and down he went right on to the roof of the old outhouse that hasn't been used for years. It went in under him like tinder, and as soon as he could pick himself up and found no bones broke what should he see but a new white grave-stone standing in a corner against some rubbish. He went up to it and saw 'Melinda Barbour' cut on it and the date she is to die."

"I don't believe it," said I, but I felt faint at heart.

"As soon as I said I didn't believe it Mrs. Johnson said we would go ourselves and see. And we did go. Mortimer being away in the fields, and entered the cornhouse. We saw the stone, just as Johnnie said, a real grave-stone of white marble, and on it the name 'Melinda Barbour,' with the date 'Sept. 8' below it. But the rest we couldn't make out."

"He's going to let her live three months. May heaven forgive him!" says Mrs. Johnson, meaning different from what she said.

"The next day I went to Melinda and told her the whole truth and, would you believe it, she said she thought Mrs. Johnson and I had no business prying about other people's affairs. 'If he had bought me a thousand grave-stones, I'd have him just the same,' said she."

"So they were married the next day in the chapel, but Melinda was white as a ghost, and she trembled so that she could hardly walk. They went away by train, and we threw some old shoes after 'em, but all the wishing of joy was make believe, and I never saw a bride with such a white, set face."

"They were away nearly three months. Then they came back to the old house, but folks said they were not happy; that she was as cold as a stone, and he was always at his books and old insects."

"One day I had a letter asking me to come and see her. She was lying down on a lounge when I got there, white and so thin, her big eyes with a sorry, hungry look in them, but she had on a smart gown and was as pretty as a picture. As soon as we had shaken hands she said:

"Do you know what day tomorrow is?" I thought for a moment and said it was the 2d of September. "The day I am going to die," she said in a soft, quiet way. Then she said he was very good to her, but she couldn't get that gravestone out of her head day or night."

"All at once it came to me how matters were. She had been too proud to give him up. Besides, she loved him, too, and she had been too proud to tell him about it, and so betwixt the two the poor child was almost beaten out. She asked if I would go out to the outhouse with her and see the stone. She wanted to see it and was afraid to go alone."

"Then a queer thing happened. Mortimer had come into the next room while she had been talking and heard every word. I never saw anybody so moved as he was when he came in."

"Is it that tombstone which has stood between us?" he said, and went on to explain that it had been ordered for his mother. He was such a bad writer that the stonecutter mistook the name Malvina for Melinda, and after the stone was half done it was found out, and they made him pay for it. So, as it was his, they brought it to him, and, not knowing what to do with it, he had just put it away in the outhouse and forgotten all about it."

"After that? Dear me, they were the happiest couple you ever saw. They used the gravestone for a front door step, wrong side up, and it was quite pretty. Melinda was very proud of him and believed every word he wrote about the beetles just as his mother had done, which only goes to show that the old saying is true, that love is blind."

WHITE HOUSE CHANGES

Entire Floor of Second Story to Be Raised.

ANTIQUE FURNITURE PREFERRED

Mrs. Roosevelt Will Use Historic Articles in the Remodeled Mansion. Plate and China Like Those of Former Days—Original Proportions of Famous East Room Will Be Retained.

Work on the White House is progressing satisfactorily. Colonel Bingham, who is supervising the improvements, returned to Washington from Oyster Bay the other day after submitting the latest suggestions for decorations to the president and Mrs. Roosevelt.

One feature which has claimed especial attention is lowering the ceiling of the east room, says the New York World. Popular opinion has declared that the original aspect of the famous east room should be preserved, and the president has given his word that the room will be respected. Architects were very desirous of making the ceilings of first and second floors correspond, as it would present a more harmonious sight when the grand stairway is carried to the living apartments. Had this plan been followed the stately ceiling of the east room would have been lowered at least six feet, and much of the grace of the apartment would have been lost.

The president has decided that the entire floor of the second story must be raised, since Mrs. Roosevelt has a decided objection to the steps which hitherto have been used in entering the east side of the mansion.

On the second floor the wide corridor will be extended throughout the length of the house, with chambers opening on each side. There will be three arches, the last just where the grand stairway reaches the sleeping rooms. This arch can be covered with drapery to give more privacy to the apartments of the president's family.

The president and Mrs. Roosevelt will choose one of the new rooms for their apartment. Naturally they desire their names to be identified with the most important change in the White House since its occupancy—that of removing the offices from the dwelling place of the presidents.

Mrs. Roosevelt has not yet made a final choice for her best room, but has indicated that the present library will be suitable. It adjoins the former office of the president and his secretary, which will go to history as the "waiting place of the politicians" and will hereafter be the nursery and playroom for the children.

The library will be removed to the large room on the northeast corner, where the clerical force formerly had quarters. The room which the president and Mrs. Roosevelt have used since coming to the White House is the large sunny one on the southwest corner, around which clusters more historic interest than any other in the house. Long ago "Old Hickory" selected it because of the magnificent view of the river had from its windows. Here he hung the picture of his wife and with the fine hospitality of those times always insisted on giving this room to his guests, since he considered it the best and most comfortable in the mansion.

President and Mrs. Lincoln used this room, and in it little Tad died. It was Nellie Grant's room, and after her departure for England after her marriage it became the guest chamber. Julia Dent Grant, now the Princess Cantacuzene, the first granddaughter of the warrior president, was born in this room. It was Mrs. Cleveland's nursery and served a like purpose during the incumbency of President Harrison, when the McKee babies ruled supreme. Mrs. McKinley occupied the room which is now Miss Alice Roosevelt's, the northwest apartment. It is the only room in the house as then arranged that had a dressing room adjoining, and many times when President Roosevelt had guests little Ethel occupied a cot in this dressing room.

Mrs. Roosevelt has been giving her attention recently to furnishings for the new bedrooms. She will use all the old mahogany which she had stored for lack of space when she came to Washington. Some of this is of great value and dates back to the first mistress of the White House, Abigail Adams.

It is Mrs. Roosevelt's desire to give preference to historic furnishings rather than try new. She is adopting a like policy with silver. Whenever there is a remnant of old plate she is using it as a model for the new service. She has also made inquiries among relatives of former presidents to get designs of forks and spoons they possessed.

When society meets on the lawn next year and again enjoys the open air hospitality of the Roosevelts, it will take tea from cups like those Dolly Madison used and have spoons like those treasures Abigail Adams brought with her from Boston.

Filipino Colony For Texas.

Fifteen Filipinos have arrived in Caldwell county, Tex., just south of Austin, and will form the nucleus for a large agricultural colony which will be established there, says the New York Times. They come direct from the Philippines, and when they have made homes for themselves they will send for their families. They propose to introduce a number of Philippine agricultural products which they believe are adapted to Texas soil and climate.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

An Honored Old Age.
Abram S. Hewitt, ex-mayor of New York city and the man whom Andrew Carnegie calls "America's foremost private citizen," celebrated his eightieth birthday at his summer home at Bar Harbor, Me., on July 31. The venerable gentleman passed this milestone of an active career in excellent health and spirits. Few men have had better opportunities to accumulate wisdom with years than Abram S. Hewitt. Gifted by nature, well trained, well placed and universally trusted, he has had about every sort of profitable pub-lie and business experience that any man could have. He is not in harmony with either of the political parties now contending in New York, but he does not for that reason imagine that the country is going to the demolition bowwows. He retains his optimism and declares that there are good times coming to the people of America.

Belmont Takes Snuff.

Oliver H. P. Belmont is one of the few society men who have the snuff habit, this not as a result of the recent attempt made in London to revive a custom high in favor with our grandfathers, for Mr. Belmont has taken snuff for years.

He has quite a collection of valuable boxes and frequently amuses himself by taking out one of these jeweled receptacles and offering its contents to wondering friends. Usually the offer is declined.

But quite recently a young lady to whom he playfully extended the snuff surprised him by taking a pinch. As she was not accustomed to the habit and had merely snuffed from bravado a violent fit of sneezing followed. Mr. Belmont always laughs when he relates that she seemed to think the requirements of the situation fully met by the polite inquiry: "Oh, beg your pardon! Did I sprinkle you?"

The Long and Short of It.

The tallest man in the present congress is Representative Cyrus Sulloway of New Hampshire. The shortest member is Samuel S. Smith of Michigan. Strange to say, Sulloway and Smith are great chums and have many confidential remarks to make to each other, although Smith has to stand on his tiptoes and Sulloway has to double himself up like a jackknife when these heart to heart communications take place. By the members who know of this intimacy Sulloway is referred to as "the majority," while Mr. Smith is called "the minority." The latter is only "the minority" so far as stature goes, for he is a very decided majority as regards his name. There are six Smiths in the house of representatives.

Churchill a Legislative Candidate.

Winston Churchill, the popular novelist who has just come out as a candidate for the legislature in New Hampshire, lives at Cornish, N. H. He was born in St. Louis Nov. 10, 1871, and his mother is a native of that city, but his father is a native of Maine and comes of old New England stock. The young author's novels, especially "Richard Carvel and "The Crisis" are immensely liked in New England.

Mr. Churchill is now at work on a historical romance dealing with the times of the Louisiana purchase.

Underwood as a Mapmaker.

F. L. Underwood of New York, who is arranging the sixty million dollar cotton mill combination in the south to be known as the Southern Cotton Yarn company, came from Charleston, S. C. It is told of him that when as a lad in school he was asked to draw a map of the world Underwood drew a dot about as big as a pea to represent the world. Around that he drew a circle as large as a dime to represent the state of South Carolina, and outside of that he drew a circle as large as a quarter of a dollar to represent the city of Charleston.

G. A. R. PARADE FEATURE.

Ear of Corn suggested as the Emblem for Iowa Soldiers.

Each Iowa soldier who marches in the grand parade at the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic in Washington in October will be expected to carry the largest ear of corn he can find, the genuine corn from the Hawkeye State at that says the Des Moines (Ia.) Register and Leader. A suggestion to this effect is made in a general order issued by Assistant Adjutant General Newman from the headquarters of the state Grand Army of the Republic department.

The order recommends that as a distinctive feature every soldier from Iowa should wear a large ear of corn suspended from the shoulder by a buff colored ribbon fastened to each end of the ear. Every comrade is urged to bring two ears of corn in his grip, so as to provide a plenty for all Iowans in case some should fail to have a supply. It is expected that this idea will find general favor among the veterans. Department Commander Lindt first suggested the plan some time ago.

MINDANAO ISLAND RACES

Strange Customs of Wild Tribes in the Philippines.

ETHNOLOGISTS STUDY NATIVES.

Bagobos Offer Human Sacrifices to "Mandarangan," Whom They Believe to Be a Demon Monster—Curious Customs of the Feroocious Bagobos—Moros Are Warlike.

Sixteen different tribes of very remarkable savages, without counting the pygmy negritos, dwell in the interior of Mindanao, numbering probably not less than 300,000 in all, and government ethnologists have already started in to make a study of them, says a Washington dispatch to the St. Louis Republic. Inasmuch as nothing worth mentioning has been known about them hitherto, there is plenty to learn; but a good many facts have been collected, and the "race map" of the great island has been drawn, to accompany a report on the subject which will be submitted to congress next December.

One of the most notable of the tribes is that of the Bagobos, who dwell, according to their own belief, at the gates of hell. They offer human sacrifices to the devil, who, they think, lives with his wives at the top of an active volcano in their neighborhood. The monster's name is Mandarangan, and it is necessary to appease him with regular supplies of blood, which is his only drink. Inasmuch as each Bagobo has two souls, one of which goes to heaven and the other to the infernal regions, he feels particularly anxious to placate the archfiend.

The origin of these tribes is uncertain. Presumably they came originally from the mainland of Asia, though some authorities are of the opinion that they voyaged all the way from Madagascar, and they certainly arrived later than the negritos. They settled in Mindanao, however, long before the Moros, who in recent times have preyed upon them, carrying off their women and enslaving the men. They are tall, well developed, intelligent and rather light of skin, with aquiline noses. Some of them are fierce and warlike.

The Bagobos are very strong and fierce, and one of their peculiarities is that the girls are as powerful muscularly as the boys of this tribe, and it is hard to tell the sexes apart. They keep slaves chiefly for the purpose of sacrificing them to the devil. Equally ferocious are the Mandayans, who offer human sacrifices with extraordinary cruelty, cannibalism being sometimes incidental. They believe in two good divinities, a father and son, and two evil ones, a husband and wife. Earthquakes they suppose to be caused by the restless movements of an immense crocodile in the center of the earth. They bury their dead in holes in the faces of cliffs.

The Manobos are ferocious and treacherous. They build their houses in tree-tops near the rivers, so as to be safe from their enemies. It is the same way with the Bagobos, though sometimes the latter place their dwellings on inaccessible crags. Among the Bagobos the costume varies with the number of murders a man has committed. When a man has committed from five to ten murders, he indicates the fact by wearing a flesh colored handkerchief on his head. A scarlet handkerchief and shirt decorate the person of the warrior who has murdered from ten to twenty persons, while for more than twenty murders scarlet pantaloons may be added.

When a Bagani has murdered somebody, he cuts off a lock of the victim's hair and attaches it to the edge of his shield, being thus enabled to keep count of the persons he has killed. He wears armor of split rattan, and one of his methods of discouraging a foe is to drive a sharp piece of bamboo into the ground where the enemy is likely to step on it and maim himself. Spring bows also are set in the jungle, so as to shoot anybody who may happen to come along.

Among the savage tribes both women and men chew tobacco and pierce their ears, distending the lobes of the latter enormously by means of plugs of bone. It is customary to tattoo the children, chiefly for the sake of identification in case they happen to be stolen, kidnapping being very common. A man pays for his wife in advance by working for her parents from four to six years, and one of the methods of solemnizing marriage consists in the giving of a handful of boiled rice by the husband to the wife, and vice versa, in token that they are mutually to sustain each other.

Concerning the Moros, whose ancestors probably came from Borneo and Celebes, there is a good deal of contradictory testimony. It is admitted that the Moro is a man built for the fatigues of war. He excels in the use of lance, buckler and sword (having small knowledge of firearms), and these weapons are his inseparable companions. He sleeps with them, and he fights equally well on foot, on horseback or in his fleet of war canoes. It has been charged that he is absolutely indifferent to bloodshed and suffering and that he will take the life of a slave or stranger merely to try the keenness of a new weapon. Looking upon work as a disgrace, his scheme of life consists in making slaves of less warlike men.

Novelty in Sandwiches.

"In England sandwiches with caraway seeds sprinkled between the thin slices of buttered bread are served with afternoon tea," writes an American woman from London. "It is a troublesome fad, as no caraway seeds are to be had nearer than Scotland."

the time for which was placed at five years. He asserts that he took only such measures on board the America as were necessary in the interests of the expedition and that he will pursue his efforts to reach the north pole as vigorously as ever.

Governor Fond of Children.

A reader of the Philadelphia Press in Minnesota who was interested in a recent story published about Buffalo Bill and his delight in writing personal letters to children who communicate with him says that the same trait is characteristic of Governor Van Sant. Since the old Mississippi steamboat captain was elected to the governorship he has received hundreds of childish epistles asking for his autograph and others from lads approaching the adult age asking for advice on certain points. Instead of leaving the task of answering these letters to his secretary, Governor Van Sant makes autograph replies and keeps up an interchange of correspondence with many of his juvenile friends.

He usually devotes to this correspondence the time that his clerks take for a noonday luncheon. One of Governor Van Sant's convictions, aside from strict totalism, is that a luncheon is an insult to a good dinner. A glass of water and an apple or sometimes a pint of peanuts is a hearty luncheon for him. He works hard during business hours and does not care to be disturbed after that in the quiet family hotel where he lives with his wife.

Kendall's Wardrobe.

Probably no other actor on the stage carries as small a wardrobe as Ezra Kendall. His change of costume consists of an old style frock coat, frayed at the edges and a trifle torn, a still older hat, shoes of a score of winters and a necktie such as grandfathers used to wear. To get into these togs takes him probably four or five minutes. He never uses a bit of makeup. Just before he goes out on the stage he runs his hand through his hair two or three times, and he is ready.

Mr. Kendall is almost in despair because his old hat is giving out. He bought it some five years ago in Baltimore of an old hatter who had received it back from an ancient gentleman of the south in exchange for one a little more up to date. Since then he has worn no other on the stage. But now the rim is off half the way around, and he has to wear it with the ripped side behind.

CINCINNATI HAS SIGNED ELEVEN.

With the signing of Harry Steinfeldt and Eddy Poole, the Cincinnati club has 11 men under contract for 1902. They are: Pitchers, Hahn Phillips and Poole; catchers, Maloney and Peitz; infielders, Beckley, Magoon, Steinfeldt, and outfielders, Kelley, Seymour and Donlin. Billy Bergen did not call on the Red President. Tom Corcoran also visited President Herrmann, but he did not sign—in fact he did not submit any proposition but asked that he be given a few more days' time to prove that he is a better ball player than his recent work would indicate. If Lee Tannehill is secured, Corcoran would have a fight on his hands to gain a position on the team as a regular.

While Sam Crawford simply laughs and says that he has writers' cramp when asked if he has signed with the American, some of his Red associates fear that he has gone by the board and tied himself to Detroit. With Bergen in line and Maloney to be counted on as an outfielder in reserve, Cincinnati will be well fortified in the garden, no matter what happens.

Joe Kelley's offer to Win Mercer is being given serious consideration by that twirler, and he admits that he may be found in the Red ranks.

PLACEBO PRESCRIPTIONS.

An Old Doctor Tells a Secret of His Profession.

"Never tell a patient that there is nothing the matter with him," said the old doctor, who was revealing the secrets of his profession. "If you do, you make a lifelong enemy and lose your patient, who sends for another doctor. Give him something, if it is only flavored water. If the disease is only imaginary, cure the imagination with a harmless dose, and your patient gets well. In the profession we call such prescriptions 'placebos,' and more wonderful cures are effected by placebos than the world wots of. So, also, when you run across a patient who announces the first thing that he cannot take certain sorts of medicine, don't tell him he must. Agree with him and give him the medicine, if he needs it, in a disguised form.

"There are thousands of people who labor under the conviction that they cannot take quinine and will tell you that they have never taken it in their lives, while at the same time they may be taking large doses of it. The taste of quinine is hard to disguise, but if administered in a pill the patient can be made to take it and never suspect what he has swallowed. The trouble is the patient is apt to recognize a quinine pill by its appearance, to suspect, bite into the pill and thus discover your ruse. To obviate this difficulty druggists now have pills of quinine made in odd shapes and colors. Pink pills, containing nothing but quinine and a little harmless coloring matter, are a favorite form for use in cases where an antitonic crank has to be medicated. In giving a placebo it is not wise to have it taste too well. The patient is apt to suspect if you do. And be sure that you gravely impress upon the patient that only a teaspoonful is to be taken at a time and that at stated intervals. The whole virtue of a placebo exists in the solemnity and importance with which you surround it."—New York Press.

FLOWER AND TREE.

Salpiglossis is a pretty, showy annual, easy to raise and worthy a place in the garden.

The birch grows farther north than any other tree. Next comes the Siberian larch and then the fir.

The dark spot in the center of a bean blossom is the nearest approach to black that occurs in any flower.

Sunflowers may be transplanted quite easily if the work is done on a rainy day or in the cool of the evening.

Preserve a green lawn in the center of the garden, however small. This is needed to set off the flowers and for purposes of relief.

Mignonette is so unobtrusive that its presence is often betrayed by its sweet scent merely, but a large bed of mignonette should be in every garden.

Dissolve fresh lime in water, allow sediment to settle and saturate earth in which small, white worms have been noticed with the clear solution thus made.

That "it is never too late to set out roses" is a true word about gardening. But "the earlier the better, so long as the frost is out of the ground," is a maxim no less worthy of dependence.

On Bare Ground.

A well known artist overheard a countryman and his wife ridiculing his picture, which represented a farm scene. He was so indignant that he at last interposed with the remark:

"That painting is valued at $100. Allow me to ask if you are familiar with works of art?"

"Not very familiar with art," replied the farmer, "but I know something about nature, young man. When you make a cow that gets up from the ground by putting her fore feet first, you do something that nature never did."—London Answers.

EDITOR'S NOVEL PLAN.

Carleton F. Hodge Will Print the Bible as a Serial Story.

REASONS FOR HIS UNDERTAKING.

Assumption (Ill.) Publisher Who Intends to Run Portion of Scriptures Each Week in His Paper Says Interest Will Be Increased and People Will Read the Book Who Now Never Look Inside of It.

Carleton F. Hodge, who in a recent issue of his paper, the Assumption (Ill.) Weekly Independent, began the publication of the Bible as a serial story, in explaining his determination declares people who never look inside of their own Bibles will read the Scriptures in a newspaper. He claims that when printed in a newspaper the Bible will become sufficiently worldly to attract readers.

Mr. Hodge is undertaking a long contract. If he prints one column from the Bible in his paper each week, it will be nearly fifty years before he can write, "Concluded in our next."

Mr. Hodge argues that his serial will prove as entertaining as any fiction he can find and besides spreading the gospel will materially add to the circulation of the Weekly Independent. His scheme has already attracted much attention, and he is daily in receipt of letters from ministers and others, some praising his scheme and others censuring him.

In talking of his reasons for deciding to print the Bible Mr. Hodge said the other day to a reporter of the Chicago Tribune:

"Why do I publish the Bible? To the majority of persons the publication of this oldest of books would seem superfluous, a senseless waste of space, considering its already vast circulation.

"Let us consider. How many people who own Bibles, have many owned Bibles and would blush to confess to the lack of one ever scan the inside of the book? How many of this number, were they so inclined, would be able, from their utter unfamiliarity with its character, to select a passage or section from which to read that would prove interesting enough to warrant a repetition of the experiment? Would they not lay it aside with at least a mental observation that it was 'dry'?"

"The Bible, considered from a standpoint wholly foreign to moral sentiment, is a liberal education if read and studied conscientiously, or with perseverance, if you prefer. Then why not serve it to them in modest courses once a week, true enough between in which to digest the contents? And why not begin at the beginning? Does one thoroughly understand a question, a principle, a piece of mechanism, until he has gone to the bottom of it and worked up, step by step, every detail impressed upon his mind until the whole is a part of himself?"

"For example, compare the man who is considered, to use a common expression, 'well informed' with the college bred man. Not in the light of individual merit and worth, understand me, but as to thoroughness and comprehensiveness. One has bits of knowledge, gathered from many sources, good and substantial of its kind, but disconnected, jumbled and incomplete. The college man, or the college education, typifies the system, beginning at the beginning.

"I believe the Bible as a serial in my paper will prove as interesting and entertaining to my readers as any fiction I could use. While I do not by that statement imply that my readers are more in the dark on the Bible than other sections or that I am making a strenuous effort to bring a colony of heathen into the light, I believe the majority of those who believe they have read the book will find something new and of interest in each installment of the story.

"There are, aside from those who are or claim to be Bible students, a large class of readers, newspaper and fiction readers, who are indifferent to the Bible and some who condemn it without so much as a trial. To this class the Bible, an equal associate of the good, bad and indifferent of general newspaper matter, will take on another complexion, become sufficiently worldly, as it were, to attract them.

"We shall see after the first number whether or not I have figured correctly. To be sure, there is no criterion. To the best of my knowledge the Independent will be the first newspaper in the history of the world to attempt the work, and a respectful 'stand aside' policy on the part of my brothers in the profession will be becoming at least until the result is discernible."

Device to Make War Bloodless.

Bloodless yet decisive battles are rendered possible by the hyposcope, an invention of a clergyman, which was exhibited at the national rifle meeting at Bisley, writes the London correspondent of the New York World. By an arrangement of a mirror in a vertical tube a marksman completely under cover can sight an opponent, who is also in cover, and take accurate aim at him. The inventor made some capital shooting under these conditions. His idea is that armies equipped with his device would shoot at hyposcopes instead of at the heads, the soldier being considered dead when his hyposcope is broken.

Civilizing Young Quails.

Miss Hattie Williams of Central Village, Conn., has twelve young quails which she is training to be domestic, says the New York World. She has them already so they will come at her call and anticipates teaching them some tricks.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

Feathers Need No Sun.

Never put pillows in the sun, even to air them, for it will bring out the animal oil and cause them to have a rancid smell. For the same reason pillows should not be dried near the fire after wetting.

If both tick and feathers must be washed, fill a tub half full of warm soapuds, add a tablespoonful of ammonia, rub soap on the tick, put into the water and use the washboard as for ordinary clothes. Rinse in several waters that are lukewarm and run the pillow through the wringer. If the clothes wringer cannot be made sufficiently loose in the rollers to allow the bunches of feathers to pass through, wring as dry as possible with the hands and beat and dry the pillows several days in wind and draft. Hang in the shade to dry. It will require at least three days. When dry, give the pillows a good beating up, and they will be sweet and light.

Colored Lace Curtains.

The time honored fashion of using white lace curtains exclusively is rapidly disappearing. For several years Arabian gray and ecru have been popular, and now there is a demand for actual color. The madras laces in stained glass effects are exceedingly liked for country houses, and town houses are taking them up. Some of the designs reproduce Gothic mosaics, as well as the glass work of such artists as La Farge. A striking design is shown in a Moorish applique lace curtain. The scene is a Moorish balcony, with latticework center, showing a suspended rose tinted lamp. Another represents a green iron grille, with a pair of gates, the curtain being divided in the middle to suggest the gates being thrown open.

Sofa Cushions.

Pretty and serviceable coverings for sofa cushions intended for summer use are made of linen, denim, duck or crash. Some of these are tinted and stamped to be worked with coarse Roman dross and are finished with ruffles of ribbon or a heavy cord. Especially pretty are the leaf designs in the tinted work on denim.

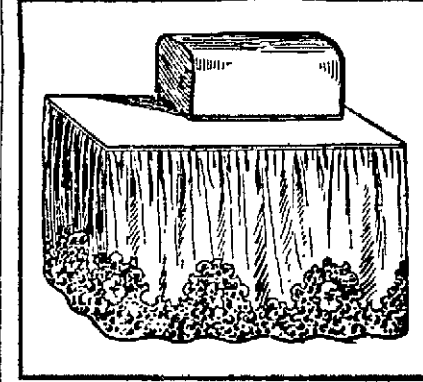

One pretty cushion of dark green denim has a design of oak leaves in a delicate shade of green.

Pink satin ribbon edged with narrow green satin ribbon is ruffled around the edge, headed with pink coronation cord.

Protects From Moisture and Dust.

Machine covers are considered the best protection from dampness and dust. They are usually made to match the cretonne or denim draperies in dining or sewing room and may be quite artistic in color and design.

with yellow braid, and the embroidery around the bottom is done in several shades of blue and gold.

The cover and table portion are plain. The skirt is gathered at the upper edge and arranged on the table portion. When further decoration is desired, a monogram may be worked on the top of the cover or at the sides.

To make the machine cover it will require 3 1/2 yards of thirty-six inch material.

Pinless Clothesline.

Women will be glad to hear that an ingenious inventor has fashioned a clothesline which works admirably without the aid of any pins. The new clothesline is composed of a series of connected links, each formed of a piece of wire, which is bent upon itself so as to form two flexible shank portions. These shanks are then twisted about each other and terminate in a loop. Clothes arranged on a line of this kind will remain in position just as well as though they were held there by pins. At any rate, so say those who have tested this novel device.

To Keep Sweet Potatoes.

Get a goods box as large as you want it. Then make a paste of flour and water. Take this and some good, tough paper and line the box throughout. Then if you want the box to look as nice as possible get wall paper to paste on the outside. Have the top to fit closely. Now set the box close to the chimney, as the warmth from the fire will make them keep better. I have known twenty bushels to keep that way and not over a peck rot.

Plum Sauce.

To make plum sauce boil three quarts of half ripe plums fifteen minutes. Rub through a colander. Add one pound of sugar, one teaspoonful of apple vinegar, half a teaspoonful each of ground cloves, mace and cinnamon. Again place on the fire and boil for half an hour. Seal while hot and keep in a cool, dark place.

Quilt For Convalescent.

A comfortable quilt to place over the knees of a convalescent permitted to sit up for a short period each day, but too weak to stand much in the way of coverings, is made by taking surah silk a yard wide and 1 1/4 yards long and lining with a thin layer of elderdown held in place by tufts placed here and there.

STEALING RAILROAD ENGINES.

—A most picturesque and sensational episode of the Civil War.—In June, 1861, "Stonewall" Jackson, under orders from General Johnston, proceeded to Martinsburg on the Baltimore & Ohio R. R. and burned a number of cars and engines. Then it occurred to one of his officers that the burning was a wanton waste, as the Confederate roads were in need of railroad equipment. Consequently the fires were put out, the locomotives dismantled and hauled by horses and men down the pike eighteen miles to Winchester, where they were again mounted on the railway tracks and hurried to Strasburg. Elated with the astounding success of their first enterprise, the Confederates continued to help themselves to other locomotives, steel rails, etc.—B. & O. property—every time they captured the road. Nineteen locomotives were thus purloined in less than a year. They were mostly of the "camel-back" type—the last of which was but recently presented to the Purdue University at Lafayette, Ind., by the Baltimore & Ohio R. R. The brilliancy of this great feat in engineering was accredited to Col. Thomas R. Sharp, who was made master of transportation of the B. & O. at the close of the war.

GEN. MILES

SELECTED BY WASHINGTON COMMITTEE AS GRAND MARSHAL

Of G. A. R., but Turned Down by National Administration—Will Preside Over Big Camp Fire.

Washington, Aug. 21.—A suspicion, seemingly well grounded, is felt at G. A. R. headquarters in this city that the unfriendliness of President Roosevelt and Secretary Root for Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles has prevented the selection of the Commanding General of the army as Grand Marshal of the great parade of the veterans during the encampment in October. Two or three days ago it was announced at local headquarters that the General would probably be chosen to head this procession, which is usually one of the most attractive features of the annual reunion of the veterans. To be Grand Marshal of such an impressive pageant would be very much to the Lieutenant General's liking, and when the local committee picked him out as Marshal, the General thought the matter was as good as settled.

But it proved to be a case of "a ship without the cup and the lip," for the announcement is made that General Blakewell, former commander in chief of the Department of New York, has been selected as Grand Marshal. It seems that while the local committee has charge of the arrangements for the encampment the selection of Marshal virtually rests with the Commander in Chief of the G. A. R. Therefore, apparently General Torrence is the man who is responsible for General Miles' disappointment. But it is plainly intimated that General Torrence received a quiet tip from the head of the National Administration to turn down the local committee's choice and select anybody but General Miles.

The committee will, therefore, give General Miles the next best thing on the programme. It was decided to have him preside over the big camp fire that is to be held in Convention Hall, which has a capacity for some thing like 10,000 people.

The Citizens' committee has asked the President to issue an order allowing all veterans in the service of the Government to attend the encampment without loss of pay.

SENSATIONAL

Dr. Walton, a Prominent Resident of Wilkin, This County, Deserted by His Wife.

Wilkin, Ohio, Aug. 21.—Considerable of a sensation has been created here over the actions of Mrs. Walton, wife of Dr. Walton, one of the oldest and most respected residents of this vicinity, in deserting her husband. Dr. and Mrs. Walton have been married about twenty years, and during that time, from all accounts, they have not lived over happily together.

It seems that Mrs. Walton objected very seriously to her husband absenting himself from home, and a quarrel was sure to ensue whenever such was the case. On Thursday of last week the Doctor brought over half a bushel of fine plums to the house, which he desired his wife to put up. She objected, however, and wanted to throw the plums to the hogs. This led to words, and finally Mrs. Walton left the house and did not return. The next day the Doctor left for Coshocton county, to attend a camp meeting and when he returned on Monday of this week he found his wife still absent and no trace of her. The affair has greatly excited the community in which the parties reside.

NOTICE—Let all members of the Bankers' Fraternal Union be present at the meeting this Thursday, evening as a class is to be initiated and business of importance transacted. By order of the President, Jennie M. Paxton.

COLUMBUS ELKS

Are Coming to Newark September 4, and Will Try to Take Prize for Largest Delegation.

The following special was received by the Advocate at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon:

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 21.—The Columbus lodge of Elks today appointed a committee to arrange for a trip to Newark on September 4 Thursday, on the occasion of the Elks' reunion, in connection with the State Convention of Ohio Elks at that day.

The committee has arranged with the Buckeye Lake line for transportation at a rate of 60 cents for the round trip.

The Newark lodge having offered a handsome $75 banner for the largest representation of Elks from any one city, the Columbus Elks have decided to go after the prize and a large delegation will go over.

BATTERY H.

How the Artillery Men are Passing Away the Time in Camp William McKinley.

Corporal Worley, who has been detailed as assistant to Veterinary Surgeon Smith at the stables, thoroughly understands his business and is the right man in the right place.

The undress parade on Wednesday morning was the most startling feature thus far during the camp, and the boys made a ludicrous appearance.

Lieutenant Koeniger, of Battery E, of Cincinnati, is still in camp.

The Battery will be mustered on Friday and inspected on Saturday.

The Battery boys are practicing for a game of ball that will probably be played with a Newark team on Saturday.

Every man in Battery H who has been examined for service in the regular army, has been accepted, which is very creditable to the examining officers of the Battery.

Colonel Hopkins made the remark that he thought that all the men in the Ohio National Guard should be acquainted with the fire drill call, and wondered whether the boys of Battery H were up in the work. Without a moment's delay Captain Busch had the fire drill call sounded, which was promptly responded to by all the men, much to the surprise and pleasure of the Colonel.

During the storm on Wednesday morning the wind blew so hard that it was necessary to fasten down the cook shack with a three-quarter-inch rope.

There was target practice on Wednesday in order to accustom the horses to firing.

"Kid" Thompson and "Hub" Williams had on the gloves Wednesday evening and celebrated the advent of sundown.

Private Faubst of the Battalion of Engineers of Cleveland, who stood fourth in the Canadian rifle team that defeated everything at Seagirt last year, will compete for one of the vacant places on the Ohio State team. He will report to Colonel Taylor tomorrow.

MARRIAGE—George L. Clarke of Utica, who is connected with the gas company, and Miss Delia Igo, daughter of John Igo, of this city, were married on Tuesday evening. The ceremony took place at 9 o'clock and was performed by the Rev. Father B. M. O'Boylan at his residence. The happy couple after the conclusion of the ceremony repaired to the Hotel Warden, where they partook of supper, after which they left for their home in Utica. They have the best wishes of all their friends.

"POWELL-WYLIE"

Mr. John E. Powell a well known and popular B. & O. engineer of this city, and Miss Maud Beatrice Wylie, of North Cedar street, were married on Wednesday evening. The ceremony took place at eight o'clock and was performed by the Rev. Father B. M. O'Boylan at his residence in the presence of several intimate friends of the contracting parties. The best wishes of a host of friends are tendered the happy couple.
